Laverroot, November, 1857.

the Editor of the Union You may be interested to know how affairs are prosing in the Old World during this season of commer depression in the New; and if the notes of a passin raveller, whose giance will be askant at generalities ather than specific details, can furnish you food for re-fection, they are at your service.

Having accompanied the seemingly disastrous news brought to this port by the Arabia, and having listened quisitions on finance and government from sundry abl-be oracles, I had almost worked myself into the would-be oracles, I have a some the last legs in Eng-land, and that we were about to bring down with us in the general wreck, not only the expanded Credit Mobilier, but the sturdy establishment in Threadneedle street. Our fears have not been realized, and the great leviathan of notes, which promise to pay specie on presentation, but has taken the precaution of raising the rate of interest to 5 per cent.—a fact which astonishes Young England not a little. Our drafts upon her constituents at the rate of $2,000,000 per month had not disturbed her equanimity until the arrival of the Vanderbilt at Southsupton; the more encouraging news from America of the past week and the capture of Delhi had produced change; the motorope serve to inspire buoyant hopes, with reference to crops serve to inspire buoyant hopes, and, owing to a plethora of wealth, prices are sustained. The mercantile houses of Glasgow, Leeds, Manchester, and Birmingham have no doubt been somewhat pinched and Birmingham nave no count been somewhat panemen by American failures, but they keep up good courage, and will, most of them, weather the aquall; but this last advance in the rate of interest has spread consternation around, and will no doubt check the shipments of specie ited the public mind for a few hours; but that is over They pay off their smaller depositors to-day, and the ould seem to form part of our system, finds but scant couragement here; and although, in my ardent triotism, I am compelled to advocate the political ex-diency of a periodical crisis as a necessary evil, tending pediency of a periodical criss as a necessary evil, tending to prevent the degeneracy of democracy into aristocracy of mere wealth, the arguments necessary to sustain the position have the appearance of sophistry to men who trade only on the basis of capital. Need I add that our banking system—which places the customer in the atti-tude of a suppliant, in lieu of that of a white man with the confidence of an institution he has aided, it may be, to sustain through long years of commercial prosperity, when money was a drug—bears a marked and discreditable contrast to the ordinary run of anking in England.

The giant steamer Great Eastern, in spite of the extraordinary precautions taken to insure her launch, still remains on the ways, to the sad disappointment rest of mankind. Fears are entertained that she will get strained in her present entertained that she will get strained in her present position. Big Ben, the monster bell for the houses of Parliament, has been attacked by the prevailing influenza, and his voice is gone! It is hinted that the bell was too large for the tower, and the only graceful way of getting out of the dilemma was to crack it and cast it over again; but this is, no doubt, a dreadful remarkable new buildings is that ventilation is now ob-tained by means of auger holes through the roof. Make a note for the superintendent of the Capitel extension. A startling fact at this time in Great Britain is the inse in number and size of screw propellers now em the construction of their hulls, and those of many iture of every conceivable shape, are made of iron.

a wild dream to hope that at no very distant day the Old Keystone State, with its pyramids of iron and oal, may be a reservoir from whence the world may draw a large portion of its supplies? May not the wars in other hemispheres and the emigration to other countries, which have already trebled the price of labor in Ireland in the mining counties as to put us more nearly on an equal footing with the English mines, nearly all of which are worked "deep in the bowels of the land?"
surely is a morsel of food for reflection.

IMPRISONMENT FOR DEBT REVIVED

By reference to the new code, prepared by Messrs. Ould and Cross, I find that any judgment creditor who will file with the clerk an affidavit "charging the debtor with fraudulently concealing, removing, conveying, or transferring his property subject to execution, with intent to defraud and delay the plaintiff, or charging that the the judgment, or some part thereof, might be paid, and which he fraudulently withholds or conceals with a view to delay or defraud the creditor," may get an execution against the body and imprison the debtor. The code further provides that the affidavit need not designate specifically any moneys or effects, and that the plaintiff, or his agent, may require any justice of the peace to make out and certify an abstract of any judgment rendered by him, and such abstract may be docketed by the clerk of the circuit court, who is to issue execution as upon a judgment rendered by said court. It will be seen that the debtor will be required to sur render all his rights, credits, and effects, or else go to jail. It is known that there are many persons who have large claims against the United States, which, if sold by the marshal, would not command one-hundredth part of their value. It is known that persons from all parts of the United States are required to come here on business with the government. Is it not possible that such per ons may be in debt, and that one of his creditors, knowing of this law, may pursue the debtor and obtain a judgent, and, by arresting and placing him in prison, com pel him to surrender his claims against the government, or to sacrifice, at marshal's sale, property in distant parts of the United States, at one-fiftieth part of its value? Is it just to the other creditors of an honest debtor to give such power to a single creditor? Will it be wise in the people of this District to subject persons having claims against the government to such oppression? Will the people, knowing the character of this code, vote in favor

If there be one spot on this continent where imprison-ment for debt should be abolished, it is here; for all who have contracts with the government know how diffi-cult it is to adjust their accounts and the delays they may capect to encounter. Such a law would have the grastest injustice.

Capt. Latham, surveyor of grain vessels for the board of underwriters, furnishes the New York Journal of Commerce with a statement showing the number of ships which have loaded with grain and salled, or will sail during the pursent month, for Europe. The aggregate quantity of grain included in the statement is about 1,500,600 bushels, of which, say two-thirds, is in bags, and the remainder in bulk. This is believed to be a larger amount than was ever before shipped to foreign ports during so brief a time. Last year, in November, while the autraordinary shipments of grain were taking place, the number of grain vessels which left New York was but forty-one will sail before the present month expires.

PERSONALIZARIA IRON WORKS.—The great western iron rolling mill, at Bredy's Bend, Armstrong county, has discharged about seven hundred operatives. It has been one price only, marked in plain figures.

FRARY & RROTHER, Courselfor at Law, has removed the product. The Pittsburg rolling mills are nearly all running half time, and the owners are storing the product. They will be well prepared for a brisk spring season, but have been compelled to forego the fall season's trade almost altogether.

THE EUROPEAN MAILS BY THE VANDERBILT. The European mails by the steamer Vanderbilt reached this city last evening. Our limits will only permit us to make room for the following article from the London Times on the abrogation of the Bank-charter act:

The Bank-charter act:

From the London Times, (city article) Nov. 13.

The Bank-charter act is abrogated. Its fate at the second time of trial has been the same as at the first. The English government have resorted to the notification that the bank are authorized to extend their issues on approved securities, without regard to the amount of bullion in their vaults, at a rate of not less than ten per

Although the announcement will give immense relief from fears which were rapidly spreading, there can scarcely be an Englishman who will not receive it with deep regret from the humiliation it involves. It must have resulted from one of two causes—either blind fright or an inherently unhealthy condition of business, which prevented our merchants from sustaining themselves against a rate of discount such as is borne at Paris, Hamburg, and a number of other centres of commerce.

In either case the conclusion is equally lowering to our fame as a mercantile nation. It is satisfactory to believe that the measure was neither asked for nor recommended by the directors of the Bank of England, or any delegated representatives of the leading mercantile or banking firms. At the same time, in justice to the government, it must be admitted that the period had obviously arrived when protective steps of some kind had become absolutely accessary.

The position of the Bank of England and the private banks was never one of higher confidence, but the apprearrived when protective steps of some kind had become absolutely necessary.

The position of the Bank of England and the private banks was never one of higher confidence, but the apprehension was evident on all sides that a withdrawal of deposites from the discount houses and joint-stock banks might commence at any instant, and totally cripple their power to continue further accommodation; that the Bank of England, from the point to which their reserve has been brought by the sweeping away of nearly two millions of gold for Ireland and Scotland, could in such case afford no adequate help, and consequently that if a resistless panic was not to be considered as having actually commenced, we were in a position in which no one could calculate on its being kept off even for a single hour.

But there were remedies available other than that of breaking and destroying the law, for a law which has been contemned on each occasion of trial must be looked upon as destroyed. The state to which we had come had not been brought about by any fault of the government or of the community at large, and it was for those who had occasioned it to find their own means of extrication. They did not look about for those means, because they knew they could obtain relief elsewhere. If this conviction had not animated them they would long before the present week have concerted measures of defence.

The English funds opened this morning with an unstendy appearance, although the announcement of £260,000 of Austrian gold by the Avon, in addition to the £525,000 expected by the Australasian, produced a favorable effect. Consols for money, which left off yesterday at 88½ a ½, were first quoted nominally 88½ a 89; but the brokers who sat for the principal banks were large sellers of stock, and the dealers, from the scarcity of money, being indisposed to buy, a fall took place to 88½.

A runor was then circulated that a government letter relaxing the operation of the bank-charter act would soon appear, and a number of heavy speculative purchases h mous. In fact, to-day and yesterday the pressure was heavier than at any time in 1847. To add to it, the country banks were drawing notes largely as a measure country banks were drawing notes largely as a measure of precaution.

The government letter to the bank does not specify what is included under the head of approved securities besides commercial bills. It is thought that exchequer bills will be received, but not stock, as for the latter there is always a ready market to any amount.

The final quotations of the French three-per-cents on the Paris Bourse, this evening, were 66f. 55c. for money, and 66f. 60c. for the end of the month, showing a decline of an eighth.

line of an eighth.

The following letter was addressed yesterday aftern to the governors of the Bank of England:

Downing-Street, Thursday, Nov. 12. GENTLEMEN: Her Majesty's government have observed

Gentlemen: Her Majesty's government have observed with great concern the serious consequences which have ensued from the recent joint-stock banks in England and Scotiand, as well as of certain large mercantile firms, chiefly connected with the American trade.

The discredit and distrust which have resulted from these events, and the withdrawal of a large amount of the paper circulation authorized by the existing bank acts, appear to her Majesty's government to render it necessary for them to inform the Bank of England that if they should be unable in the present emergency to meet the demands for discounts and advances upon approved securities without exceeding the limits of their circulation prescribed by the act of 1844, the government will be prepared to propose to Parliament upon its meeting a bill of indemnity for any excess so issued.

In order to prevent this temporary relaxation of the occasion, her Majesty's government are of opinion that the bank terms of discount should not be reduced below their present rate.

Her Majesty's government reserve for future considera-

Her Majesty's government reserve for future consideration the appropriation of any profit which may arise upon issues in excess of the statutory amount.

Har Majesty's government are fully impressed with the importance of maintaining the letter of the law, even in a time of considerable mercantile difficulty, but they believe that for the removal of apprehensions which have checked the course of monetary transactions such a measure as is now contemplated has become necessary, and they rely upon the discretion and prudence of the directors for confining its operation within the strict limits of the exigencies of the case. We have, &c.

The Richmond "Advertiser" says: "It is currently reported that there is a heavy balance unaccounted for in the State taxes. If this should turn out to be true, there will be many worthy men the securities of the defaulter) who will suffer very severely. Before giving publicity to the facts which have come to our knowledge, we will await until a full investigation has been made. For the sake of the gentlemen who are responsible for the supposed defalcation, we trust that the rumor may be unfounded, though it is so generally talked of that there is but little hope."

A large golden eagle, measuring seven feet and four inches from tip to tip and three feet from his feet to his peak, was killed by Mr. Green A. Rader, near Lewisburg, Virginia, one day last week. This monster bird was attempting to steal one of Mr. R.'s turkeys when he was killed.

SUSPENSITIC CHARITY.—The keenness and the bitterness of winter weather should remind our citizens that there are these in this metropolis who need (or who will soon need) fuel, food, and clothing. Almost every one is disposed to give a trifle when solicited, and should a severe snowstorm visit us, money will speedly be raised for the pur-chase of fuel for distribution. But, unfortunately, most of the street-beggars are professional mandianals, unworthy of the charitable donations which they extort, and it is well known that when fuel has heretofore been publicly distributed much of it has been obtained by families who were in reality able to provide for themselves. In short, the recipients of miscellmeous charity are not, generally speak-ing, those who merit charity. Even our charitable soaid from different sources, each one being ignorant o ciety" are now endeavoring to arrange a systematic and thorough plan of action by which all the meritorious poor thorough plan et action by which all the meritorious poor can be uniformly sided, while importunate schemers will be thwarted in their predatory assaults upon the sympathies and the purses of the charitable. A public meeting was held a few evenings since to consider the subject, at which the Rev. Messrs. Samson and Harold gave their experience as almoners, and solicited co-operation and aid. Hon. Howell Cobb (at the request of the ladies of the society) also addressed the meeting, pledging his own services, and as-serting his belief that if the ladies had taken the lead in organizing a systematic relief movement the gentlemen would not be backward in contributing means wherewith to carry out the good work.

General Duff Green, Messrs. Rheese, Richards, and O'Brien afterwards spoke, and the following ladies and gentlemen were chosen a committee to arrange a plan of systematic action, vis: Rev. Dr. Gurley, Rev. Dr. Har-old, Mr. Rheese, Mrs. Webb, Mrs. Columbus Monroe, and Mrs. Maynard. This committee will meet on Monday evening next, and will report at a public meeting, to be held on Wednesday next, at eleven o'clock, a. m., in the E street Baptist church.

DEATH OF REV. GEO. FENWICK .- It is with regret that we find chronicled the death of Rev. Geo. Fenwick, of was born on the ground now within the college enclo-sure, and has spent most of his life at this venerable seat of learning. He was a ripe scholar. As a mathemati cian and linguist he had very few equals, and no supe riors. He was a universal favorite among the students and professors at the college; and his company was generally courted by all who were in the habit of visiting the institution. He was about sixty-three years of age.
